Admission was strictly by invitation, the invitalimited to seventy-five, making an almost ideal crowd to enjoy the dancing to its fullest measure. The hall was prettily decorated, the color scheme being amber, red and white. An immense sign containing the words "Machinists' Social Club" was hung from the ceiling in the mid-dle of the hall, making a very effective bit of decorating. The cozy corners were attractively decorated as was also the punch booth where Brown's delicious punch came in for a large share of attention. ROMANCE AND A JILTING.

Few people in the audience at the Tabernacle, who heard Mrs. ginia Lee Brandt Berg deliver Virmagnificent address on the "White Slave Traffic," realized that while they were listening to a hard-worker in the great fight to save girls from a life of shame, they were listening to a bride of a little more than a who had had a romance in which Hjalmer E. Berg, a brakeman of the Salt Lake division of the Southern Pacific was the young hero. Early in December, Mrs. Berg, in December, Mrs. then Miss Brandt, as secretary of the national board of the Crittenton Rescue homes went to Reno, Nevada, where she met in the young brake-man her future husband. Berg, possessing a splendid tenor voice, sang a church where Miss Brandt attended each Sunday. Following a service the brakeman-singer met the little giant slum worker and he became constant in his attentions.
At Christmas time Miss Brandt's parents passed through Reno, enroute San Francisco where they to take a steamer for an Oriental Their daughter accompanies them to the Golden Gate city. Berg secured a lay-off and went to San Francisco. When the young lady returned to Reno to put the finishing touches upon her work, Berg, on his way to Imlay to return to stopped off in Reno for a few days Miss Brandt left Reno on the ever of January 4, for New where she was to marry Bruce Bogard a wealthy young man who can write cks in seven figures. When Miss Brandt left Reno, Berg left on the same train for his duties at Imlay. The trip on the train from Reno to east assisted Berg and Cupid to win Miss Brandt, The simple little western town and its handy justice of the peace looked better to Miss Brandt than the New York Fifth ave church and its mighty preacher so it is Mrs. Hjalmer E. Berg of Reno instead of Mrs. Bruce Bogard of New WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

Washington's Birthday was fitting-Methodist church an elaborate dinner and supper and evening entertainment, given un-der the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society. The church parlors were beautifully trimmed with flags, and table decorated with our na tional colors and in colonial style, with candelabra and candles.

All the ladies in charge and thet assistants wore gowns of a colonial style. The powdered hair, colonial gowns, menu and decorations carried one back to the days of our fore fathers.

In the evening the guests were received by Mr. McCreery as George Washington, Mrs. Burnham as Martha Washington, Mrs. Forristall as Mrs. Curtis, and Mrs. McCreery as Mrs. Hancock, with Leroy Minter and Doris Johnson as little George and Martha, all "en costume." Several of the dresses worn were ancient and created quite a bit of interest. The evening's program, under the management of Mrs. Frey, was very interesting. "The History of the Flag" was read by Mrs. Frey, fol-lowed by a vocal solo by Mrs. Brook shire, which was most heartily en cored. "The Red, White and Blue was given by Henlen Johnson in red. Margaret McDonald in white and Katherine Falck in blue, followed by the chorus, "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue," by thirteen lite girls in costume, accompanied by flute solo by Mr. Nylander, accom anied by Miss Frey, was a treat to all, and his response to a hearty en-ore was greatly appreciated. The climax of the program was a recitation by Leroy Minter as George Washington and one by Doris' John son as Martha Washington, followed by a grand march, in which thirteen little girls representing the original thirteen states, passed in review be-fore George and Martha, saluting as they passed, and closing by all the children singing "America."

The day was a complete success so cially and financially, and the ladies are to be congratulated on the result of their efforts

TWELFTH ANNUAL BALL.

"To All Concerned Everywhere Lodges 98 and 173 will doublehead and run extra Thursday, February 24 1910, with right of track over all other lodges of every class and rank," thus ran the "orders" received by those who attended the grand ball given under the auspices of the members of Perseverance Lodge No. 98, B. of F.
